Treatments feel like:

- Many people feel little or no sensation at all during the treatment. Some people feel a tingling or warm sensation under the applicator or electrodes. This feeling usually decreases or disappears after a few hours as the person becomes used to the sensation. This sensation can vary depending upon the site being treated.
- You will begin to notice change in the treated area approximately 4-7 days post treatment and will continue to change throughout your series of treatments. To maximize results we recommend light exercise such as walking to increase lymphatic drainage and wearing a tight, compression undergarment may also increase results.
